According to our Shanghai morning contemporary, the ex-King of Burmah made an appeal to the Emperor of China for assistance, just before the capture of Mandalay. The Chinese Government, however, declined to interfere. They had no wish to embroil BAW was about to get his deserts; and were probably the less disposed to intervene owing to the recent intrigues of the deposed movarch with M. HAAS, the French Consul. Apart from these excellent reasons for nonintervention by the Peking Authorities, the connection between China and Burmah has several months from the Colony. for many years been very slight. There is no doubt that the ruler of Burmah formerly regarded the Emperor of China as his suzerain, and sent him tribute, but the suzerainty was of a purely nominal character and China exercised no active influence at Mandalay even on the King's foreign relations. No remonstrance from Peking followed the annexation by the British Goverument of Aracan, Pegu, and Tenasserim, and events in Burmah have never caused Chinese capital. King Three w has never even, so far as we can gather, sent any tribute or acknowledgment of his vassalage to the Dragon Throne, and doubtless the fact would be remembered against him when his request for aid was transmitted the other day. The last tribute offered by Burmah to China was in 1875. It was desputched by commencement of the year, going overland through Yunnan. The Envoys bore with Maritime Customs. them a letter, in gold characters, from the King to the Emperor, begging his acceptance of the following presents: -A Burmese stone | arrived at Shanghai on the 9th inst. She left image of the God of Longevity; five tame elephants; a pair of ivory tuaks weighing 80 in the Peiho; the water was very low and the catties; three jadestone articles weighing 210 catties; eight gilt framed and inlaid mirrors; two gold rings set with rubies; two gold rings set with ya-tsing; twenty-eight to discharging all foreigners as fast as possible the wish must have been father to the thought, mounted by an ample forebastle, a deck-house foreign carpet rugs; 10,000 sheets of gold leaf and the same number of silver leaf: At present there is not a single European seventeen catties of sandalwood; ten bottles scent and ten of pomade; fifty-four ornamented boxes; five pictures of elephants and fifteen peacock's tails. The tribute mission reached Peking on the 10th September, that H.I.B.M.'s cruiser Djigit was bound for 1875. We cannot gather that an particular courtesy or favour was extended this morning to bring her in. H.I.R.M.'s gunto the Burmese Mission. It has always been the policy of the Chinese Governmont to treat the tribute bearers with condescension, and accept the presents as a matter of course. The fact of their arrival and presentation is duly recorded in the dry pages of the Peking Gazette; they are entertained at Peking for a time and sometimes allowed to trade—this was especially the case with the Korean Envoys before the were acting with the assent and friendship of peninsular kingdom, was opened to foreign trade-and they are then passed on their way from one Viceroy to another with an ful last season, will commence again for this seaescort of soldiers. King THEEBAW apparently saw no reason for rendering tribute to the Son of Heaven, and the Chinese Emperor has for prizes. The following is the programme: been unable to discover any good cause for regretting the downfall of the lord of Ava A change has, moreover, come over the views of the Peking Cabinet on foreign affairs. The boats were paddled back, and Shanghai Polytechnic Institution; which emptied of a large quantity of water which had took place on the 6th instant, is an event of some importance in connection with the pro- tried conclusions. This race does not need much gress of Western education in China. the N. C. Daily News, been procured. An advanced achool of science is to be formed in connection with the institution, and the preparatory school referred to is intended to train boys to enter this advanced class. The scheme, if carried to a successful issue, of which there appears to be every prospect, cannot fail to confer great advantages on China and the Chinese. The multiplication of agencies in the Central Kingdom whereby a knowledge of Western arts and sciences can be disseminated, and the thick clouds of prejudice cleared away, is greatly to be desired, and any progress in this direction is matter for sincere congratulation.
